

Provo High School was built in 1956. Courtesy of Provo City.

library was dedicated on 28 July 1939, and since that time facilities have grown to include more than 65,000 books and 125 periodicals. Air conditioning, a visual aids area, a phonograph record department, and multicopier facilities have all been improvements which have increased the value of the library in recent years.

Schools

Schools have grown rapidly in the past thirty years. Provo High School, established in 1912, was ready criticized the board for wanting to build the school "out in the suburbs." It was not long, however, before Provo built around and beyond it.

Other school buildings rose up all over the city. The Joaquin and Timpanogos elementary schools were built and occupied in 1938. Grandview was built in 1948-49, and the major portion of Provost and Wasatch schools, both erected as primary unit schools, were built in 1949. The first portion of Sunset View School was built in 1959, and the main portion of Rock Canyon was built in 1964, and